20a. How does the Committee accomplish its purpose?

The National Advisory Committee on Occupational Safety and Health (NACOSH) meets in open sessions with a wide variety of presentations made by senior staff members from both the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH). Each full committee meeting begins with a summary of activities provided by the heads of OSHA and NIOSH.

20b. How does the Committee balance its membership?

As specified by the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (OSH Act), NACOSH comprises 12 members: four public representatives, two management representatives, two labor representatives, two occupational health professionals and two occupational safety professionals. The Secretary of Health and Human Services designates two of the public representatives and both of the health professionals. All members are appointed by the Secretary of Labor. Consideration is given to diversity in size and type of business, geographic location and personal experience. An effort is made to represent all elements of industry and the public.

20c. How frequent and relevant are the Committee Meetings?

The NACOSH charter provides that the committee meets two to four times per year. NACOSH did not host any full committee meetings in FY25. NACOSH meeting minutes, and charters can be found at www.regulations.gov under docket OSHA-2024-0005-0010.

20d. Why can't the advice or information this committee provides be obtained elsewhere?

NACOSH is a statutory committee established by the OSH Act of 1970. This is the only group of a continuing nature that brings together employee, employer, and public interests regarding occupational safety and health in general industry. General industry covers a wide range of types of employment. The advice of this group is important to both OSHA and NIOSH in fulfilling their functions.

20e. Why is it necessary to close and/or partially closed committee meetings?

NACOSH meetings are open to the public and public participation is encouraged.

21. Remarks

NACOSH reports to the Secretaries of Labor and Health and Human Services.
