20a. How does the Committee accomplish its purpose?

Members' comments and discussion provide advice to the Agency on improving communications practices, from both a basis of scientific research and practical experience, in matters ranging from specific types of agency communications to more general strategies and research needs, in order to help the agency accomplish its goal of improving patient and consumer safety by providing risk-benefit information that is clear, timely, and usable by the audience. The meetings also facilitate the RCAC purpose of interactive sharing of information between the FDA and the public.

20b. How does the Committee balance its membership?

The RCAC consists of 15 voting members including the Chair. Members are selected among authorities in fields such as risk communication, social marketing, health literacy, and other relevant areas. Some members will be selected to provide experiential insight on the communications needs of various groups who use FDA-regulated products such as patients, healthcare professionals, consumer or patient advocacy organizations. Depending on the topic, the commissioner or designee may select from a group of individuals nominated by industry to serve temporarily as nonvoting members who are identified with industry interests. FDA will give close attention to distribution with respect to members' geographic region, minority status, and sex, so long as the effectiveness of the Committee is not impaired.

20c. How frequent and relevant are the Committee Meetings?

The committee did not meet in FY-22 and is considered Administrative Inactive.

20d. Why can't the advice or information this committee provides be obtained elsewhere?

FDA strives to communicate with many audiences using many instruments, but in the past not all were developed or evaluated in ways consistent with established best practices in risk communication. The RCAC is necessary in order to bring expertise on current research and established best practices to the Agency, to help the agency interact with the public for more effective risk communication. This need was recognized both in the Congress (HR 3580) and the National Academies' Institute of Medicine (The Future of Drug Safety, recommendation 6.1).

20e. Why is it necessary to close and/or partially closed committee meetings?

N/A

21. Remarks

This committee is Administratively Inactive as the committee has completed the work that was required by the originating statute.

Narrative Description

FDA's strategic priorities in responding to the public health challenges of the 21st century are to advance regulatory science and innovation; strengthen the safety and integrity of the global supply chain; strengthen compliance and enforcement activities to support public health; expand efforts to meet the needs of special populations; advance medical countermeasures and emergency preparedness; advance food safety and nutrition; promote public health by advancing the safety and effectiveness of medical products; establish an effective tobacco regulation, prevention, and control program; and manage for organizational excellence and accountability. The Risk Communication Advisory Committee supports FDA's strategic priorities by providing expert advice on FDA strategies and programs designed to communicate with the public about the risks and benefits of FDA-regulated products, review and evaluate scientific research relevant to risk communication, and facilitate the interactive sharing between FDA and the public of information on risks and benefits of FDA-regulated products.

Cost Savings Comments

The utilization of the Risk Communication Advisory Committee enables the Agency to obtain required and frequently scarce professional services from medical, scientific and communications experts not otherwise available to the Agency and to obtain the services of these experts only on an as needed basis rather than on a full time basis. The service of the committee resulted in advice for the improvement of the public health, for which it is difficult to assign a financial value.
