Narrative Description

The goal of NIH research is to acquire new knowledge to help prevent, detect, diagnose, and treat disease and disability, from the rarest genetic disorder to the common cold. The NIH mission is to uncover new knowledge that will lead to better health for everyone.

NIH works toward that mission by: conducting research in its own laboratories; supporting the research of non-Federal scientist in universities, medical schools, hospitals, and research institutions throughout the country and abroad; helping in the training of research investigators; and fostering communication of medical and health sciences information. Section 492 of the Public Health Service Act states that The Secretary...shall by regulation require appropriate technical and scientific peer review of (A) applications, and (B) biomedical and behavioral research and development contracts. The National Advisory Research Resources Council provided second level peer review, made recommendations for support of grants and cooperative agreements; advised on policy development, program implementation and evaluation; and identified research needs of the National Center for Research Resources.
