20a. How does the Committee accomplish its purpose?

To ensure thorough understanding of both the current processes and methodology of the per diem and government lodging programs, the Board consulted with government personnel tasked with managing these programs. The Board also researched the impact of the current programs as used by government agencies and travelers through interviews with government representatives including Federal Executive Boards (FEB's).

Additionally, the Board conducted a survey on traveler satisfaction with the current per diem rates, which resulted in over 12,000 responses. Further, the Board reviewed pertinent published articles and comments in GSA's "No-Vacancy" website to evaluate satisfaction levels. To obtain information regarding "Best Practices" for per diem and lodging programs, the Board surveyed officials with State governments, Canadian provinces, travel agencies, and corporations, including cost-reimbursable contractors. The Board also obtained assistance from the National Business Travel Association (NBTA) and industry consultants to identify common and best practices. Throughout this process, the Board worked closely with government entities, including GSA, DoD, and various other government agencies. Based on research analysis and industry expertise, the Board established criteria for a) setting appropriate per diem rates and b) developing an effective governmentwide lodging program. After extensive review of other alternatives, the Board endorsed use of the current per diem reimbursement structure (lodging at actual expense up to the GSA-established maximum and a fixed meals and incidental expense (M&IE) allowance). The Board has developed recommendations that include a total revision of the current lodging per diem methodology, which will cause per diem rates to be set based on substantiated market data. Revision of the incidental expense model and a more regular benchmarking of Federal meal rates are also recommended. In addition, the lodging best practice recommendations provide a streamlined approach to a governmentwide lodging program, which will realize savings for the Federal government while providing Federal travelers with appropriate accommodations, within per diem, and are viable to all stakeholders. The Board concluded that lodging programs, which are effectively managed, are most successful and recommends that GSA take appropriate action to establish and manage one governmentwide program for all Federal government travelers.

20b. How does the Committee balance its membership?

The Board's membership consists of both Federal and State government officials along with industry experts who have applied their knowledge and engaged in research with other knowledgeable individuals and industry organizations to examine topics related to governmentwide per diems and lodging programs. To assist in achieving its objectives, the Board created two subcommittees, Governmentwide Per Diem Subcommittee, and Government Lodging Program Subcommittee, to conduct research and provide advice, ensuring that all activities of the subgroups complied with FACA. The subcommittees' deliverables were:

- The Governmentwide Per Diem Subcommittee presented recommendations for improvements to the per diem rate-setting process and methodology for meals, lodging, and incidental expenses within CONUS.
- The Governmentwide Lodging Program Subcommittee presented recommendations for a nationwide government lodging program that provides government travelers with properties appropriate to mission requirements, provides the government with the best price value, and is commercially viable to the industry.

20c. How frequent and relevant are the Committee Meetings?

Estimated Total Meetings - 7 - Once per month.

20d. Why can't the advice or information this committee provides be obtained elsewhere?

The Governmentwide Per Diem Advisory Board (the Board) questions the appropriateness of the per diem rates, the methodology used to calculate the allowances, and whether the current processes and programs are the most suitable. To address these questions, the Administrator General Services established the Board to review the current process and methodology used to establish the Federal per diem rates within the Continental United States (CONUS). In addition, the Board was established to provide advice regarding best practices for a governmentwide lodging program.
