20a. How does the Committee accomplish its purpose?

The Cell Biology Cluster supports research on the function of the structural components of the cell, and the mechanisms and regulation of providing and responding to information received by the cell. The Cell Biology advisory panel reviews and evaluates the proposals, and aids the Cluster in deciding which proposals are most deserving of funding taking into consideration the importance of the research to cell biology. The panel also provides advice in developing priorities and long range plans. The panel reviews between 300-360 research proposals per year.

20b. How does the Committee balance its membership?

The panel is composed of scientists with expertise in the various areas of science which are reviewed by the Cluster, including function and assembly of cellular components, dynamics and control of cell division, intracellular trafficking, and response of cells to stimuli including various signaling mechanisms. To ensure a balanced view, the membership of the panel includes representatives from small colleges as well as state and private universities, junior and well-established faculty members, women, minority scientists, and scientists from various regions of the country.

20c. How frequent and relevant are the Committee Meetings?

The Cell Biology Panel is comprised of two sections each of which meets twice a year in order to help assure timely processing of proposals.

20d. Why can't the advice or information this committee provides be obtained elsewhere?

The panel, by discussing all proposals at one time, is able to provide a relative evaluation of the proposals and also to reconcile any unusual or discrepant reviewer comments. Moreover, since the panelists are active scientists, they are able to recognize new and significant ideas and provide such advice to the Program Directors. By meeting periodically, a substantial proposal load can be dealt with in both an effective and timely manner.

20e. Why is it necessary to close and/or partially closed committee meetings?

To review proposals that included information of a proprietary or confidential nature, including technical information; financial data such as salaries; and personal information concerning individuals associated with the proposals.
